

Reynoldsburg-Truro HISTORICAL SOCIETY

- HOME
- ABOUT
- CALENDAR
- LOCATION
- HISTORY
- SITE MAP
- LINKS

THEN AND NOW

Scenes from Reynoldsburg's past, relating to Reynoldsburg today.

Allison Winters, father of member Jack Winters, rides a tricycle in front of the Martin and Julie Winters home in 1909. This house was located at the Southwest corner of Brice and Main Street.

Located on the same corner in Reynoldsburg, Ohio in 2006 is the Flowerama store managed by Carol Rodriguez. The location had previously been a Gulf Oil filling station.

Wrestling brought fame and fortune to Al Haft and his motel/restaurant on main street in Reynoldsburg. These two photos were taken by the sign company at the new motel in the mid 1940's.

Believe it or not, down deep inside the shell of this bank still lies some of the original Haft restaurant. In the 1970's it was a TAT Restaurant and then eventually became the Heartland Bank.

This is the building on Main Street, in old Reynoldsburg, known today as Connell Hardware. This photo is from the 1890's.

Here is Connell Hardware in this 2009 photo. The main entrance is now on the Lancaster Avenue side of the building.

The St. Rt. #256 farm of W.V. Ashton. A guess at the date of this photo is in the 1920's

McDonalds/Shell now sits on this same stretch of St. Rt. #256, just north of the I-70 Interchange.

Contributing Photographer, Neal Piek.